Your Green Dress

We all own articles of clothing that have stories behind them and therefore carry great meaning for us. Maybe it's a scarf you wore on your first date with your significant other, or maybe it's a sweater you wore during personal trials that brought you comfort. Whatever your version of Tina's green dress is, writing about it can be a creative exercise that brings past memories and emotions to the surface.

What's your "green dress"?

What are some words you'd use to describe how you feel when you think about its history?

Write the story behind it.
